FCBuzz.org Is Your Plan For Vacation Time & Things To Do In Fairfield County

FAIRFIELD (December 6, 2010) – Are you looking for something fun to do during the holidays? The kids are home from school and friends and family will be in town, if you need entertainment there is one place to visit: FCBuzz.org Whether you are interested in a performance, family entertainment, art, music, history or something in between, FCBuzz.org is your source for great cultural experiences in Fairfield County. Here are just a few inspirational choices listed on FCBuzz.org during the last week of the year:

Vacation Workshop: Paper Theaters! at the Bruce Museum in Greenwich. Inclusive, hands-on art workshops for students in grades 1 – 3, who will explore the exhibition, A Child's View: 19th Century Paper Theaters, and then work on related paper theater projects.

Frosty the Snowman at the Downtown Cabaret Theatre in Bridgeport. It's a new, "Glee"-full take on the tale... Can Frosty keep from melting, help a group of singing kids from the local elementary school win the Holiday Harmony Glee Club Competition, and hang on to his magic hat long enough to make a few wishes come true?

Holiday Express Train Show at the Fairfield Museum and History Center. A fun-filled family event loved by adults and kids of all ages! View model train displays from the g scale accessories, and collectibles. Interact with classic trains, modular dioramas, antique trains and more.

Gregg Allman at the Palace Theatre in Stamford. A natural artist gifted with a beautifully soulful and distinctive voice as well as brilliant keyboard and guitar expertise, Allman is a legendary performer who, more than 30 years down the road, still loves making music as much as ever.

Dark Star Orchestra at the Klein Auditorium in Bridgeport. Praised by Rolling Stone for their complete and utter control over all that is The Dead, Dark Star Orchestra is capable of recreating entire Dead shows on stage.

Exhibition: AMERICANA: The Unexpected Side at the Greenwich Arts Council. A group exhibition of twelve artists, both well known and emerging, which takes a fresh look at recent art celebrating the American experience. All the works are related in various ways to the historical, geographical, and cultural history of the United States.
